Collect Value Divest: The Savvy Appraiser

Highly entertaining and instructive; destined to become a collector's best friend... A debut guide provides advice for both serious and casual collectors. —Kirkus Reviews

Stewart's guide to collecting is entertaining and informative, making it ideal for anyone who wants to understand the objects that surround them. Impeccably organized and edited, and thoughtful in its presentation, Stewart's guide to collecting is also an informative and entertaining read that will benefit and enhance anyone's quest to buy, sell, or simply understand the objects they live with.

—Foreword Reviews - a 5 star review and finalist for Book of the Year, Foreword INDIES Award

Thoroughly 'reader friendly' in tone, content, organization and presentation, Collect Value Divest: The Savvy Appraiser is very highly recommended for both community, professional, and academic library collections." —Midwest Book Reviews

Finalist for Book of the Year, FOREWORD INDIES Awards

Collect Value Divest: The Savvy Appraiser delivers short, concise chapters so that any collector can easily learn how to value their paintings, books, artifacts, and treasured possessions. Dr. Elizabeth Stewart condenses her thirty years as a certified appraiser into easy-to-read anecdotes that cover commonly asked questions about value. She provides tips on how to buy, sell, insure, and auction, and explains how to bequeath pieces.

Stewart shares her secrets of the art and antiques marketplace. Learn what appraisers don't want you to know—all the tools to assess value, beauty, rarity, market level, provenance, and quality. Having appraised many estates for celebrities and CEOs, Stewart knows value and can detect frauds, and nothing, no matter how quirky or unusual, is beyond analysis.

Most people possess some family treasures that have been passed down through generations, but are these items valuable or just part of the family's history? With this guide, family members facing the hurdle of divesting of their parents' belongings can judge what is worth having appraised and what can be given away. The book is great for seniors who are downsizing and trying to evaluate what to keep and what to give to family or donate, including that "prized" family china.

Using real-life cases and rich images, Stewart instructs on the Dos and Don'ts of collecting; how, what, and where to collect; the next big thing; clues to identification and worth; online tools for finding value; how to sell and what to donate; and what your kids do not want.

Whether you're a serious collector or someone trying to value family belongings, Collect Value Divest: The Savvy Appraiser will answer your questions on how to evaluate your collections.

Author Bio

Elizabeth Stewart is a career appraiser of fine art and antiques, active in the field for thirty years. Elizabeth serves the Santa Barbara county area, and has appraised for clients nationwide. Her areas of expertise are 19th- and 20th-century fine art and works on paper, as well as American and European 18th-, 19th- and 20th-century furniture. Intrigued by the strange or curious, Elizabeth takes on clients that average appraisers decline. She is available for consultation onsite for one or one hundred items, for insurance purposes, charitable contribution purposes, and estate, trust, and equitable distribution purposes. She maintains offices on both coasts.

Elizabeth received her undergraduate degree in Architectural History, magna cum laude, from Tufts University, and she has a Master's Degree in Historic Preservation from the University of San Diego. She holds a doctorate in Mythological Studies (with an emphasis on Material Culture) from Pacifica Graduate Institute. Her doctoral dissertation, "The Material Image: Why Collectors Collect," focused on the psychology of connoisseurs, hoarders, and fetishizers.

For the past nine years, Elizabeth has broadcasted her own weekly "Art and Antiques Radio Show" on KZSB AM 1290, as well as writing a weekly column, aptly titled "Ask the Gold Digger," for the Santa Barbara News Press.
